

Kids make that perfect gift for Epiphany.

Wednesday, 09 January 2008

A woman from Pécs handed over her two-year-old daughter to an acquaintance on Sunday, saying she couldn't care for her. She had called her acquaintance and told him she had wanted to meet and talk about something important. They met at a parking lot of a shopping center where the woman gave the man the little girl, her birth certificate, some clothes and food. The man turned to the police the same day. The child was taken to a foster home. Police are investigating but say that no crime has taken place. Apparently kids make that perfect gift for Epiphany.
