

Trabi to keep puffing

Wednesday, 09 January 2008

Trabant owners have won a four year respite from having to install catalytic converters on their cars after reaching a spoken agreement with the government. The reasoning for this decision is that most Trabant owners cannot afford to equip their vehicles with the smog-reducing device. Air pollution enthusiasts are no doubt ecstatic about the decision.